Each year, Warc, the global authority on effective marketing, tracks the results of the top global and regional awards shows for creativity, media and effectiveness for the Warc Rankings, the ultimate benchmark for advertising.

To assess how often creative work is also effective, and to uncover the main characteristics of ideas that are highly awarded for both creativity and effectiveness, Warc has analysed the results data from the creative and effectiveness awards shows tracked by Warc Rankings between 2015 and 2019. The findings are now published in Warc's latest research, 'The Health of Creativity'.

Measuring creative commitment

The best ideas have higher creative commitment scores. Campaigns are more effective in terms of sales, brand building, market share and profit effects the longer their duration, the more numerous their media channels, and the higher their overall spend.

How often is creative work also effective?

Each year, WARC tracks the results of the top regional and global award shows for creativity and effectiveness for its WARC Rankings.

Using the rankings data, we wanted to assess the health of creativity: how often is creative work also effective?

We compared data from the rankings to see how many creative ideas were subsequently awarded for effectiveness, and if highly awarded campaigns were more likely to be effective. In this way we can say if there is a correlation between creativity and effectiveness; as creativity increases, does effectiveness do the same?

Methodology

An 'idea' is an overall creative concept. One idea can include multiple campaigns or campaign components that together form a creative idea.

Ideas included have been awarded in a show tracked by the WARC Rankings between 2015 and 2019.

Where ideas are referred to as 'highly' creative or effective, they (or a component of the idea) have been ranked in the WARC Rankings. Campaigns are ranked as a result of being awarded multiple times in shows tracked by the rankings.

Grey Africa reflects on its award-winning campaigns over the past year

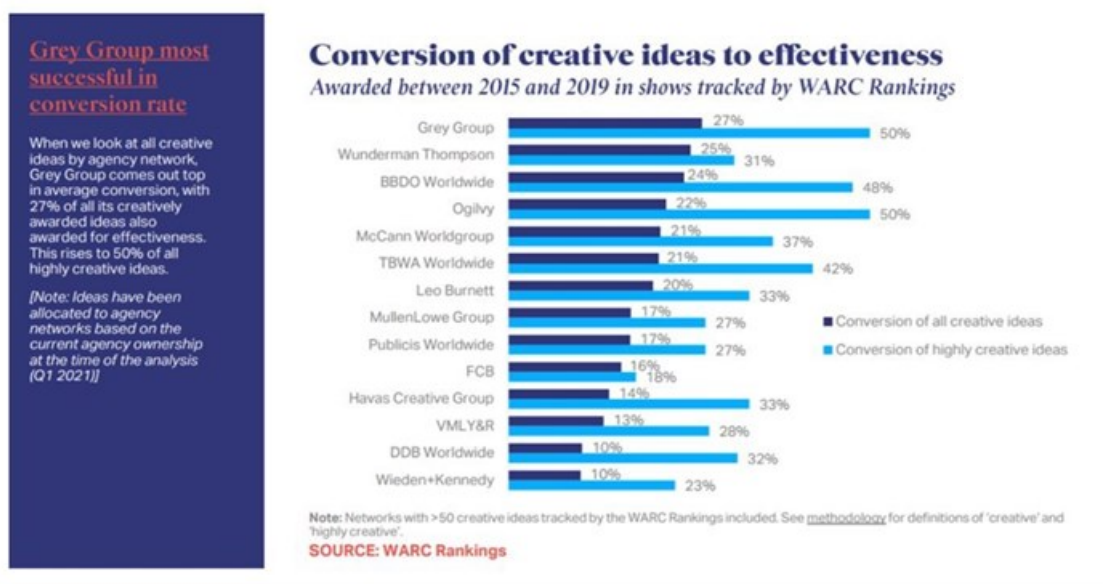

Grey Africa 26 Oct 2020

This rises to 50% of all highly creative ideas.

“Grey has helped to launch, sustain, renew and reinvent great brands for many of the world’s great marketers for over 100 years. Our goal has been to be the world leader in applying creativity to solve our clients’ business challenges. To live, breathe and fulfil our ‘famously effective’ credo: crafting big, powerful ideas that resonate in culture to drive brand and business success.

“We are delighted that Grey has come out on top as the most successful of all the major agency networks in creative effectiveness. Increasingly, advertising is an art and a science. The magic and the power of Grey’s ‘famously effective’ vision has made us a winner at both,” explains Paul Jackson – CEO, Grey Advertising Africa.
