

Axis Communications opens office in Africa

Axis Communications has shown exponential growth in Africa and has announced that they are opening their new office and making key new appointments in Kenya, Nairobi.

According to Jason McGregor, Sales Manager at Axis Communications, Africa, the market has shown continued maturity towards IP video which is why they found it necessary to invest in the region and provide a more complete service to their channel partners as well as end users. Nairobi has been dubbed the Silicon Savannah of Africa and is one of the most developed cities in Africa.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>