

Turkish Airlines widens Africa network, launches flights to Port Harcourt

Port Harcourt has become the 56th African country to be a part of Turkish Airlines air travel routes. The airline already flies to Lagos, Kano and Abuja in Nigeria. "With Port Harcourt as our fourth destination in Nigeria, we see this growth as an added opportunity to connect more cultures and people around the world," says Kerem Sarp, Turkish Airlines senior vice president of sales.

Image Supplied.

South African passengers can connect globally with daily Turkish Airlines flights between Johannesburg and Istanbul, and five flights a week from Cape Town, and three flights a week from Durban.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>