

FedEx opts out of servicing Amazon

Adweek reports that FedEx has ended its FedEx Express contract with Amazon. The courier delivery service will, instead, focus on working with the extended e-commerce market. In a statement, Amazon said it respects FedEx's decision and thanked the company for its role in serving Amazon customers over the years.

An Amazon representative indicated that the decision applies only to FedEx Express - which affects air services; FedEx will remain a last-mile carrier for Amazon. Read more on Adweek.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>