

Harley Davidson goes for gold at new Gold Rand dealership

On Thursday 30 September, VIP guests such as Isidingo star Jack Devnarain and Harley Owners Group (H.O.G) members celebrated the launch of the first black owned Harley-Davidson dealership in South Africa along with the owners, Sean Shipalana and Aubrey Mkhabela.

Canapés and drinks were served while guests enjoyed the cool tunes of Sangoma and his band Tokyo Groove. Harley-Davidson representatives kitted out in latest Harley motorclothes collection showed off the iconic motorcycles which set the scene of admiration for the legendary machines. This once again proved that Harley is a unique lifestyle brand, extending far beyond the road.

"The Harley-Davidson brand represents passion, freedom of expression, individuality, independence and adventure and who wouldn't want to be a part of that?" concludes, Shipalana.
