

Modjadji becomes Dance World Cup ambassador

Paul Modjadji, the choreographer of SA's first dance film, Hear Me Move, has been appointed Dance World Cup ambassador.

Paul Modjadji

The Dance World Cup organisation is one of the biggest dance federations based in the UK, and the only dance competition that roves around the globe.

His role and duties include promoting dance culture in SA, and to mentor the South African team that will be representing SA at the Dance World Cup Finals in Romania during June 2015. He will be going around the country encouraging young dancers not to give up on their dreams and also mentoring them on how to turn dance into a sustainable career.

C Stapelberg, director of the Dance World Cup SA, commented: "We cannot thank Mr Modjadji enough for his substantial support during the 2014 season of Dance World Cup South Africa. He showed great enthusiasm and attention to all the dancers who participated in the local events and the international tour."

Modjadji is currently visiting the UK and the US to promote Hear Me Move.
