

New Dan Patlansky album and launch tour

Dan Patlansky's eighth studio album, entitled 'Introvertigo', which was written over the course of two years, produced by Theo Crous and recorded at Bellville Studios, Cape Town, will be released in May 2016.

"Introvertigo describes a feeling I very often experience being an introvert. The concept behind the album is very much about my own insecurities. It's about being an introvert in the music industry, my experiences in the industry and life in general. Even though the songs on the album have different topics and are not directly about being an introvert, It comes from an introvert's point of view."

Patlansky used his personal life experiences as inspiration for the album to marry good songs with guitar playing. Working with Theo Crous for the second time, he describes the process as more streamlined this time around, which allowed space for a more creative environment.

"Fans can expect a unique brand of blues rock born out of guitar playing whilst striving for strong song writing. I am very excited and proud of this album, and honestly feel this is my best release to date."

'Introvertigo' will be released on CD and will be available for purchase on iTunes and at all Dan Patlansky 'Introvertigo' album launch tour live shows. The album will be available for pre-order in South Africa from 25 March, and will be released worldwide on 6 May 2016.
