

Black Coffee, Distruction Boyz lead 2018 Dance Music Awards nominations

The 2018 Dance Music Awards South Africa nominations have been announced. South African music fans took to the internet to vote for the favourites over the past three weeks.

Submissions closed at the end of July with the top five nominees in each category finalised. These were officially announced online last week. With a final selection that was held entirely online, these Dance Music Awards South Africa were managed as an audience-voted award event dedicated to South African dance music.

DANCE MUSIC AWARDS

SOUTH AFRICA //2018

VOTE
NOW

Voting will be driven strictly by social media and online interaction via the official website, meaning no 'panel' will dictate the nominees. With the fully transparent user voted award process, this gives the public the power to choose the award winners.

Last year's winner Black Coffee takes the lead with three nominations this year with Best Male DJ, Best International DJ, and Best International Producer. Following closely behind are Durban locals Distruction Boyz with two nominations in addition to a track feature. This includes two Best Gqom records - Madness ft Tipcee, the 2017 hit Omunye, and a feature in hit track Dladla Mshunqisi in the same category.

"With a total of 20 great categories this year, the public response has been phenomenal with almost double the number of votes than last year," says Dance Music Awards South Africa's rep Kyle Worde. "We have already seen a huge increase in social media interaction alone this year. Several of the artists have played a big role in encouraging their fans to vote which adds to their own popularity but also the awards."

Voting closes on the 19 September 2018. To vote go to www.dmasa.co.za

The City of Ekurhuleni will host an honorary ceremony on 26 September 2018 at Birchwood Hotel, where all winners will be announced.
