

Business school launches 'Free to Learn' competition

As part of its commitment to ensuring access to quality higher education, Regenesys Business School recently launched its 'Free to Learn' competition in which qualifying students stand a chance to win bursaries to the value of US$10,000 - enabling them to study and acquire a formal qualification for its certificate, degree or MBA programme.

"These bursaries will provide much needed financial support for individuals who wish to further their studies and awaken their potential. Formal education need not remain a distant dream, Regenesys is, therefore, delighted to be contributing in this way," says Siegie Brownlee, chief executive officer, Regenesys Business School.

Each year hundreds struggle to further their studies given financial constraints. The Regenesys Free Business Education offers learning materials including tutor videos, study guides, eBooks, webinars and academic articles from certificate to MBA level. All the learning materials are free, however, in order to acquire a formal qualification, assignments and written exams are required and this becomes a paid for option. These bursary will cover theses costs.

"Our mission is to provide quality education to one million people in the next three years. Regardless of one's location or financial means, everyone should have access to life-long learning and development opportunities. The free access to all the learning materials, and now offering bursaries to formalise studies are ways in which we can make our mission a reality" adds Brownlee.

For more, go to www.regenesys.co.za/freetolearn or www.facebook.com/groups/Freetolearn.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>