Eduvos, one of the largest private higher education institutions in South Africa, understands the importance of an internationally recognised qualification that is accredited by the right bodies.

The Covid-19 pandemic saw a rise in the popularity of remote and hybrid working. A 2022 study conducted by Owl Labs found that 16% of all businesses around the world are now fully remote. This means that more businesses are looking to attract foreign workers as employees, with the help of technology like Zoom and Microsoft Teams, can do their jobs from anywhere in the world.

In order to access these opportunities, it is vital for graduates to have an internationally recognised degree as well as the relevant skills.

“Private higher education is increasingly recognised as a high quality and affordable alternative for tertiary education. It is estimated that about 25% of all students are now in private higher education,” says Dr Riaan Steenberg, a director of the NetEd Education Group that owns several education institutions, including Eduvos. “With international comparability, industry endorsements, and better support structures to students, there is a real opportunity for young people to change their future outcomes through private education.”

Eduvos offers more than 27 qualifications which are all fully accredited by the South African Higher Education Quality Committee (HEQC) of the Council on Higher Education (CHE). Eduvos is registered on the National Qualification Framework (NQF) by the South African Qualifications Authority (SAQA), through which our qualifications are nationally and internationally recognised.

SAQA aligns South Africa's education system to the global environment and ensures international comparability. Eduvos students thus leave with an internationally recognised degree, which is vital in the digital, globalised world we find ourselves in.

Eduvos is also a registered private higher education institution with the Department of Higher Education and Training under the Education Act No. 101 of 1997.

Where possible, Eduvos aims to be endorsed and accredited by relevant industry bodies. These industry endorsements are from both local and international companies.

The faculty of Information Technology provides students with industry-recognised content, endorsed by CompTIA and AWS Academy.

As of September 2022, Eduvos's Bachelor of Commerce in Accounting qualification is accredited by the South African Institute of Chartered Accountants, Associate General Accountants (SAICA AGA).

Other endorsements include:

- ACCA, the global body for professional accountants
- CIMA, the world's leading and largest professional body of management accountants
- SA Board for People Practices
- Institute of Accountants and Bookkeepers

As well as being a fully accredited degree-conferring institution, Eduvos strives to ensure its students leave with a degree as well as practical and up-to-date knowledge that they can apply in the working world. Eduvos' curricula are therefore constantly updated to keep up with industry trends and give Vossies an academic edge.

"At Eduvos we meet regularly with our Industry Partners to ensure that our learning is current, innovative and relevant. Our programmes include elements of Work Integrated Learning, exposure to global insights, and immersions into the real world, to ensure that we remain locally relevant and internationally competitive."
