

There's more to crop rotation than meets the eye

By Bill Kerr

31 Dec 2015

Just about every farmer would agree that crop rotation is a good thing - and the more diverse the crops in the rotation, the better. For this reason, we plant a root crop followed by a leafy crop followed by a fruiting crop followed by a legume. Right?

Sten Forse via Wikimedia Commons

Unfortunately, it's not quite as simple as that.

Read the full article on Farmer's Weekly.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>