

#BeautifulNews: A shift in creative energy can unite the Eastern Cape

We've been on this planet for thousands of years, each civilisation adding to a constant flow of ideas. But over time, much of this has been lost. Which is why traditional healer Sisonke Papu is curating and showcasing the creativity inherent to his home province.

"Although the Eastern Cape has contributed to the development of South Africa, art created within this space is forgotten," he says. His goal is to make these culturally significant products accessible to the rest of the world.

Read Sisonke Papu's full story here.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>