

The world's first competitive automated trading platform - a Proudly South African invention

QuidPro, a South African-based company, has created the world's first competitive trading Lobbies. Users and traders alike can compete against each other using crypto trading bots to win their share of the Lobby Pot, and gain skill points to earn a global ranking.

QuidPro is sponsoring 15 different Lobbies to the value of R1,000/1,000 QUO each during October and November 2020. And there are plenty of cash prizes up for grabs!

Free to experiment – no risk!

The QuidPro trading platform is free to download and it allows users to experiment with automated trading bots with zero risk! The simulated bots allow users to test their strategies in real-time as well as backtest their strategies against historical data.

"We had to learn the hard way as we hadn't yet developed our simulated bots," says Wez Patrick, co-founder of QuidPro. "Each trade used real funds and, as a result, there were always financial implications to the learning process – both good and bad. Our ability to experiment was dependent on how much money we had available. This had to change! Learning and experimenting should be free!"

Join a Lobby and stand a chance of winning cash prizes!

Once a user has tested their strategy and gained some experience, they can confidently enter the competitive trading Lobbies. To enter a Lobby, users pay an entry fee in QUO Coin – QuidPro's very own digital currency. Based on their positional performance, pay-outs are then awarded to bots/traders in QUO Coin.

Why are the QuidPro Lobbies unique?

The competitive trading Lobbies allow users/traders to make money based on their performance in the Lobby, removing the effects of the market from the equation completely. The Lobby prizes in QUO Coin are pegged to the rand and, as a result, they do not fluctuate and are unaffected by the market. This means that traders can make money based completely on their skills and performance against other traders. They don't have to generate market profit, they just have to beat the other bots and traders in the Lobby, and winners can receive in excess of 300% return on their entry fee. There are very few investments out there that can return 100s of % in a matter of days like the QuidPro Lobbies.

"Both Wez and I are competitive by nature, we needed an arena to battle! We wanted to see whose strategy would outperform the others. We couldn't find a single platform that allowed us to compete against each other, so, we simply built our own! QUO Coin was the cherry on top, it allowed us to keep a record of who was winning and place wagers on the competition, similar to poker," says Martin Meiring, co-founder of QuidPro.
