13 May 2015

OFM, the sound of central South Africa, which broadcasts from South Africa's biggest agriculture show, presents South African rock band the Parlotones on tour and a chance to win R10,000 during the month of May.

From 12-5 May, OFM once again broadcasts from South Africa's biggest agricultural show, Grain SA's Nampo Harvest Day. Over the years, the Nampo Harvest Day has grown both in stature and in numbers with thousands of visitors expected to attend this year. Cyril Viljoen will be broadcasting 'At Lunch with Cyril', live from Nampo Harvest Day weekdays from 12-3pm to bring listeners all the latest from the exhibition. Nampo Harvest Day receives 60,000 visitors over four days with over R1 billion rand of agriculture equipment on display.

From 18-28 May, listeners have the chance to win R10,000 in The Ten Second Challenge. To win the cash, ten songs must be identified in ten seconds. The 10-second song montage will be played during The Trend, with Enriko Klopper and Lerato Leila from 19:00. SMS 'ten' and the answers to 36636 and Enriko or Lerato might call you back to make you a winner.

Also in May, the multi-platinum selling band, The Parlotones will be touring through central South Africa to play hits from their new album, 'Antiques and Artefacts'. Catch them at Emoya Estate in Bloemfontein on 14 May, Rio Casino in Klerksdorp on 15 May and The Barn in Vereeniging on 16 May.

Says OFM General Manager, Nick Efstathiou: "OFM has long been an ardent supporter of this great South African rock band and is once again proud to be associated with their central South African tour."

Finally, OFM celebrates the music of the 90's during 90's Rock Weekend on 15 and 16 May, and 90's One Hit Wonder weekend on 29 and 30 May. As always, listeners stand the chance to win money and CD's by tuning in to our theme weekends.
