Cengage and Edge Learning Media are delighted to announce a new partnership in South Africa. This partnership will see Cengage representing Edge's leading textbook catalogue within the South African public university sector, as well as in Namibia, Botswana, Lesotho and Eswatini.

Edge Learning Media focuses on improving the student learning experience through its suite of textbooks and digital materials, which cover business, finance, accounting, humanities and social sciences. These rich materials are developed specifically for South African education providers and, as such, complement Cengage's portfolio.

"EDGE has been producing local textbooks for the South African higher education sector for quite some time. Our partnership with Cengage will allow us greater reach to more Southern African higher education institutions." - Andrew Hibling, Edge Learning Media

Cengage is a leading textbook and digital courseware provider for the higher education sector, both globally and within South Africa. Cengage works with local academics and content experts to produce and deliver high-quality content and learning solutions.

Under the agreement, Cengage will partner with Edge Learning Media as its sole sales agent of textbooks in the public tertiary education sector, with immediate effect.

"We are excited to be working with the team at Edge and taking their innovative range of textbooks to the public tertiary education market in South Africa. The breadth and depth of the Edge portfolio complements Cengage's international and South African titles, and further extends the choice of material available to support instructors, and to help students succeed." - Andrew Robinson, Cengage EMEA
