First episode of the popular reality series franchise tops the streaming charts.

The first episode of The Real Housewives of Durban (RHOD) launched exclusively on Showmax on 29 January 2021 and within hours was trending on Twitter and on screens.

A review of the launch day statistics on the streaming platform reveals that RHOD has broken all previous first-day viewing records, claiming top spot on the streaming service.

The episode landed on Showmax at 12am with die-hard fans staying up until midnight to stream. Views started to pick up from 7am, continuing to rise throughout the day with views peaking at 8pm. Over the last week, RHOD has remained the most popular show on Showmax.

Speaking about the success of the first episode, Candice Fanguero, head of content at Showmax, says: "We know our reality fans come for the drama and if you're looking for fireworks, the first episode of RHOD has it all, so we're not surprised to see it break records."

The series features six successful and stylish Durban socialites: Annie Ludick, Ayanda Ncwane, Kgomotso Ndungane, Nonkanyiso Conco, Nonku Williams and Sorisha Naidoo. In the series, viewers are invited into their homes, their businesses and, of course, into their drama too. The first episode ended on a bombshell as Nonku Williams shared her personal connection to Ayanda Ncwane, CEO of Ncwane Communications and widow of gospel legend Sfiso.
