FoxP2 was recently ranked as South Africa's most creative medium-sized agency on the Loeries Official Rankings 2020 for the second year running.

"I'm excited to join FoxP2 and be part of their narrative," said Leshope. "I've always admired them for their remarkable creative work but it's been amazing to see them mature into the well-balanced powerhouse they are today while not only retaining, but sharpening their creative edge.

"Joining them is an honor because it's not just a job, it's about being part of a living legacy, especially when your partners are the founders of the business," he said.

"As the most effective creative agency in South Africa, according to Scopen, our fierce belief in powerful insights that can transform business and unlock consumer attention is why we're hiring someone who's the real deal," said FoxP2 creative partner and MD Grant Jacobsen.

"Someone whose view on our industry is progressive and whose talent is razor sharp. Someone who knows how to find the narrative in the data and exploit the gap in the market. Someone who is as comfortable sparring with Grant Sithole as our executive creative director, as he is holding a boardroom full of CEOs. Someone whose experience across both decades and the continent tempers
