Savanna Premium Cider has always prided itself on being one of the most innovative brands in SA. Its latest product innovation, the deliciously crisp and dry Savanna Chilled Chilli with hints of chilli and ginger, is currently taking South African taste buds and timelines by storm. But the innovation doesn't stop there, as Savanna now takes a bold step into the tech and digital AI space and unleashes Gugu, a spicy new voice assistant, on the Savanna cider lovers of South Ahh.

Developed for Savanna by Chakalaka Norris, the charismatic spokesperson for Chilled Chilli, Gugu is like Alexa, if Alexa was a certified member of Black Twitter, hella spicy.

But what does Gugu actually do? Well, if you ask her, she can do anything that any other AI can do, except, she won't because she simply refuses to solve people's problems for them. Unless that problem is needing a Savanna Chilled Chilli, then for some reason, if you just ask nicely, she's happy to put you in touch with that spicy game.

"Gugu is inspired and born from the spiciest personality traits found in South Africans – Siyavanna SA! She is both a spicy encounter and a reward with a spicy but chilled drink. Another great example of how Savanna is constantly breaking the innovation mould to amuse and uplift South Africans through humour," says Eugene Lenford, marketing manager, Savanna Cider. "We look forward to entertaining our fans and with Gugu's unique outlook on life – she might teach us all a thing or two."

Visit gugu.savanna.co.za from Friday, 6 May for an up-close and personal experience of the deliciously Siyavanna spiciness. Ask her anything you want, but be warned – you better be ready for how she'll come at you.
