

First female CEO for FMI

Lulu Rasebotsa has been appointed the new chief executive of FMI, a division of Bidvest Life. The appointment is effective 6 October 2021.

Lulu Rasebotsa, FMI's chief executive

The first female to take up this position in the company, Rasebotsa takes over the reins from chief financial officer, Neil Wolno, who has been acting in the position since April 2020.

She joins FMI from Liberty Life Botswana, where she was managing director for the past 10 years. She has more than 25 years' experience in the financial services industry, including time in underwriting, and has steered diverse financial services businesses in both the Botswana and South African markets

"After a rigorous selection process, we're delighted to welcome Lulu on board to head FMI. Her vision for the industry and extensive experience across the financial services sector make her ideally suited to lead and build the long-term growth and sustainability of FMI in the market," says Hannah Sadiki, chief executive at Bidvest Financial Services.

"The appointment demonstrates the company's commitment to driving a strong transformation agenda across Bidvest and the broader industry," says Sadiki.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>