About Luca Gallarelli

Luca Gallarelli is CEO of TBWA\ South Africa. The agency, which celebrated its 40th birthday this year, calls itself The Disruption Company. We were curious to hear how they apply that philosophy to their own business. And what common industry business practices Luca believes are long overdue for a shake-up.

About Suhana Gordhan

Suhana Gordhan started as a copywriter and spent the better part of two decades rising through the ranks. She ultimately went on to become one of the few women chief creative officers of colour in the ad business. We asked her how much room there is for wordsmiths in the age of ChatGPT, and what their role might look like as AI becomes part of our creative toolkits.

About Kabelo Moshapalo

Kabelo Moshapalo is chief creative officer at Ogilvy South Africa. His work has been awarded at shows across South Africa and the world, and he has been a jury member at numerous awards shows, both locally and internationally. He is a digital specialist and has extensive experience creating effective digital executions. So, we asked him what people are getting wrong in the digital space. We also wanted to know how he sees AI tools playing a role in creative work in future.
