

#BeautifulNews: This salon gives women a chance to makeover their lives

A massive transformation is taking place in Chante Herries' salon – and not just for those getting their hair done. Some of the stylists who work here have a background of drug addiction, and the impact it's had on their lives has been quietly devastating. "What these women have gone through has taken away so much of their self-esteem, their confidence, their self-love," Herries says. But in between the roar of the blow dryer, the chatter and laughs, change is in motion.
