

See: BMW i4 electric car revealed

BMW Group has announced its first-ever BMW i4 that will be available in November 2021. The BMW i4 will hit South African shores early in 2022.

The BMW i4 is a four-door gran coupé that combines this vehicle concept's hallmark spaciousness and practicality with the sporting ability for which BMW is renowned and a range that also convinces over long journeys.

The BMW i4 is the BMW brand's first purely electric model focused squarely on driving dynamics from the outset. Initially, only one model variant will be available from launch, being the first BMW M car with a locally emission-free drive system.

Key styling details on the i4 include a huge front grille, which is similar in size to that of the latest 4 Series Coupé but is sealed off as there's no need for engine cooling.
