

Mimecast announces two senior appointments to support South African operations

Mimecast Limited, leading email security and cyber resilience company, has announced the appointment of two key new hires, Moss Gondwe as public sector director and Collin Kunene, as channel director, to support its operations in South Africa and bolster its local senior leadership team.

Gondwe, a former IBM and Microsoft executive, will focus on expanding Mimecast's footprint within public sector organisations by working closely with strategic channel partners. With decades of experience, he will also take on a mentorship role, working with the local team to help develop the next generation of Mimecast leaders.

Kunene, who has held senior positions at MTN and Huawei, will draw on his extensive experience in the telco and technology sectors to help drive Mimecast's channel strategy in South Africa and other markets in Africa. As a channel first business, this is an important move for Mimecast as Kunene will focus on continuing the expansion and growth in an already strong network of partners.
